Raising the flag on a new school year

Heinsburg Community School's new principal, Troy Runzer, slowly raises the Canadian and Alberta flags on Friday morning as Frog Lake First Nation representatives Melvin Abraham and Moize Paul provide an honour song. The flag raising ceremony, attended by students, staff, elders and family members, was followed by a feast, as Heinsburg celebrated the official start of the school year.

New principal coping well with 'a big jump' in Heinsburg's school enrolment

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

Heinsburg Community School is coping well with "a big jump" in student numbers, including to new principal Troy Runzer. The school currently has a registration of "about 155 students. We had 102 last year," he says.

"The kids from last year are helping the new students to sort out the routine," Runzer says. "I'm quite happy with where we are and I think we're on the right path."

Heinsburg "had a plan started last year to look at the cultural and academic needs of the students and blend them in,

Runzer said. "We started last year with the changes we felt were needed, and the families responded by sending us their children."

Runzer moved up to the principal's office this year, after serving as vice principal last year, and previously taught and was vice principal at Two Hills Mennonite School. "I have a lot of fond memories of the amazing people in that community."

Earlier in his career, Runzer taught in Onion Lake for three years, and says the students there "have some family connections" with those in Heinsburg.

"There are so many families here that are the bedrock. They have entrusted us with their children, and we'll do great things together. We have a long way to go but we're on the right track." He noted that the school population could have increased even more, had more busing been available.

The influx of students has meant hiring 1.5 additional teachers, and although the St. Paul Regional School Division was "only up slightly in numbers, they supported us with extra help," Runzer said.

At the beginning of the school year, he noted, "we had 31 kids in a Grade 3-4 class. Now we separate them out for half a day for their academic classes. It's important to get them off on the right foot."

Heinsburg School is also making headway in school athletic competition, an aspect that had diminished in recent years when the school population dwindled.

Close to three dozen banners showing the school's proud history of St. Paul Athletic Association wins have been re-hung on the gym walls.

"Our banners are back up and we're back in business. A lot of families are part of that history."

Incumbent Ron Fraess is the town's representative on Alberta Care, the Canada Day Committee, the Community Advisory Policing Committee, Interagency Health Committee, Northeast Alberta HUB, the Regional Water Commission and Alberta's Lakeland DMO and is a volunteer driver for seniors, as well as a member of the Elks Lodge and the St. Paul Legion. "I believe I've done a good job and can continue to do so."

Debra McQuinn has lived in Elk Point since 1997 and worked at F. G. Miller High School before going into banking. She has been the Chamber of Commerce president for three years and is also involved with the Community Lions and has opened many events with her singing of O Canada. "My love for the community knows no bounds," she told the crowd. "I plan to see this community continue to grow and prosper."

Bernadette Godlien is familiar with farming, ranching and trucking and has been married four times. Involved with the community, she has been both the Exalted Ruler and the District Deputy of the Elks, and loves to sing. "I feel I could be a good representative for the people, and if anyone had a concern, I could kick a."

Coral Kratchmer works for the school division as an information technologist, but also has a background in construction. She has been here since 2008, enjoys the community and would like to see it grow.

Incumbent Eugene Buck was born here in 1959 and moved back to his home town in 1990. Since then he has served on the library board and chamber of commerce, and for the past three years, has followed "the old family heritage of volunteering for public service" on town council. He says Elk Point is "a busy, vibrant community" that will face future challenges with funding, and he feels he could use his business expertise to help council stay on the path of progress.

Lorne Young also grew up in the area, and taught for 23 years in Heinsburg and spent 10 years as the principal of Elk Point Elementary School. He has "the energy and the interest" to work on the community's behalf, and believes "the best job I do is listening to people, coming up with plans and making it happen. I'm here to serve. As a community, we have a lot to do, we need to keep growing, plan for the future, and consider what the town will look like 10 years from now."

Incumbent Bernice Capjack is involved in numerous organizations and volunteer work, boards and committees, and says, "there's always time if you care about your community." She has enjoyed being on council and "has not shied away" from dealing with problems put forward by residents. "I want to be part of the team" to deal with health care, roads, commercial, industrial and residential development, to keep the community safe and clean, to spend wisely and "work with the resources we have and make financially sound decisions."

Incumbent Dwayne Yaremkevich is seeking his fourth term on council, and said he was born and raised in Elk Point and has been employed with Elk Point Truss for 34 years. He wants to keep this "a clean, safe, caring community" and serves on numerous committees, is the president of North East MuniCorr, a director with Evergreen Waste Management and vice president of the chamber of commerce. He is pleased with the growth currently underway in Elk Point and feels it is indeed "the right place to be."

Question period

The evening's first question came from the Social Studies 30 class, and asked how candidates would deal with growth, infrastructure and development in the future.

Kratchmer said she would "like to see improvements in infrastructure. The industrial section is excellent, this is a peaceful community and I would like to see that continue."

Godlien has seen "both good and bad" come from community growth and said improvements "can add up to a lot of money. Keep in mind (the oil) won't last forever."

"The only way we can handle growth is with planning," Fraess said. "The only drawback is the lack of funds. Money holds us up, and we're playing catch-up."

"We need to meet with the businesses and find out what the need is and how to get there," McQuinn commented. "We need to look outside the community for investors."

All candidates were asked what area of strength they would bring to council.

Buck - "Fiscal commonsense."

McQuinn - "Up front, honest and direct."

Godlien - "Honesty"

Kratchmer - "Research and attention to detail."

Young - "Collaboration."

Capjack - "Organizational skills."

Yaremkevich - "Business management skills."

Pidluzny - "Time and resources."

Fraess - "Problem solving."

A second question from the high school students asked how the town could better involve the public.

The opportunity for giving is endless, with last Wednesday's meeting pointing out a variety of needs and new homes for everything from mittens, quilts, scarves and afghans to stamps, soup labels and crocheted hats and slippers, as well as to stitch simple dresses and shorts for youngsters in Africa.

Meeting puts the 'giving' in Thanksgiving week

Many possibilities, many ways to help others

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Midway through the week before Thanksgiving, 'giving' was the theme of first of its kind meeting at Elk Point Further Education, as a group of interested volunteers gathered to discuss the possibilities that exist to help others, while at the same time finding homes for items no longer needed in their own lives, or finding a useful outlet for their talents and the time they have to spare.

Verona Lea Flanders said she was inspired to organize the meeting after reading a book by Jennifer Chiaverini entitled, "The Giving Quilt," but making and giving quilts to those less fortunate or those in need of comfort is nothing new for Further Ed, whose dedicated group of quilters has completed and distributed more than 1,750 quilts over the years. Other volunteers have knitted or crocheted hundreds of slippers, sewn pillowcases and sewn dresses for children in Africa.

She suggested that a guild be formed to meet about once a month to share ideas and do group projects. "Giving is a good thing. Giving to someone you don't know is a special kind of giving. When you give without any expectation of receiving recognition in return, the rewards are amazing," Flanders told the ladies at last Wednesday's meeting. "You will be amazed at the ways that giving gives back."

A list of potential 'things to give' covered most of a single-spaced sheet of paper, and ranged from personal care items to bedding, backpacks, craft supplies, yarn and knitted or crocheted items, fabric and items made from fabric, to grocery coupons, used stamps, pop can tabs and soup labels, and much more. A short list of places to give these items to grew as the meeting went on, and included a number of fundraising silent auctions to garage sales held for worthy causes, and groups including Santas Anonymous, Meals on Wheels and the Elk Point Health Care Auxiliary, as well as church based charities such as camps for disadvantaged youth and the annual Trees of Warmth and other charities such as the Bissell Centre and Ronald McDonald House.

The ladies agreed that this also could be a way to let people know about what worthy causes are out there, and what needs could be filled by donations of materials and time.

"We don't want to step on any toes or take over what anybody else is doing," Flanders said. "We want to be a contact point for helping out." She urged those present to "spread the word to others. As we hear about new opportunities for giving, we can share them. We cannot change the whole world, but we may be able to change the world for someone."

For more information on the Giving Guild, please call Verona Lea at 780-724-4101.

- Flu viruses are spread by contact with respiratory droplets from another person's sneeze or cough. These droplets may make contact with your nose or mouth. It can also be spread by kissing or touching something with the virus on it. Shaking hands can do it. (Elbow-bumping, anyone?)
- Other ways of reducing your chances of getting the flu (besides the yearly flu shot) is to ensure you are getting enough zinc and vitamin D in your diet. Zinc seems to strengthen the immune system. Beef, lamb, chicken, oysters and pumpkin seeds are good sources. Multivitamins contain 7.5 to 15mg of zinc. Vitamin D in doses of 2000 units daily from food and supplements is now a recommended minimum.
- Pharmacists are often asked if it's safe for a pregnant woman to get a flu shot. The answer is a definite yes. The flu can put stress on the heart, lungs and the immune system as well. Having respiratory problems while pregnant can cause complications. So by all means, if you are pregnant, get a flu shot
- For many herbal remedies, there is no good evidence for many of the claims made for them. Arnica is one of these. It's not safe to take it orally, however for use on injured areas of the skin that might bruise has some anecdotal evidence that it helps. So it's worth a try. Side effects include itching, rash and dry skin.

Time to choose

The time to make choices is at hand. In the County of St. Paul, all voters have the opportunity to choose their new reeve from three worthy opponents. In the town of Elk Point, voters are able to make four choices from the list of 10 candidates listed on the ballot. Each candidate has qualities that would be an advantage to the local government, each has their own viewpoint on priorities that the town needs to work on, and each has their own ideas of how to make our community a better place to live and do business. Voters in both municipalities have had the opportunity to attend pre-election forums and learn first-hand what they want to know about the candidates. Voters, now it's up to you. Please vote.

WAY BACK WHEN...

Campaigns and candidates

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND THE ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF OCT. 15 IN...

1988

Beaver River Progressive Conservative candidate John Dahmer opened his campaign office in Elk Point, cutting the ribbon held by supporters Glen Harms and Sid Holthe and campaign manager John Tilton. The 100-foot historical mural was finished at last, with artist Billie Milholland adding the final brush strokes to her huge creation as volunteers applied the protective coating and painted the molding and frames that would hold the panels in place.

1993

High school students from Ashmont, Mallaig, Heinsburg and St. Paul joined their counterparts at F. G. Miller to hear Beaver River election candidates Eugene Houle (NDP), Michael Zacharko (Liberal) and Deborah Grey (Reform) explain their parties' platforms. Lily Thompson and David Skolarchuk were Heinsburg High School's highest achievers for the past school year.

1998

Incumbent Ed Buck faced off against Gordon West in the battle for the mayor's chair in the upcoming municipal election, with four councillors – incumbents Mae Hendrickson, Bill Schuhmacher and Walter Lesyk and newcomer Dennis Jasinsky – elected by acclamation. The chamber of commerce joined the Town of Elk Point in the crusade to keep the Northern Lights Library System headquarters in Elk Point.

2003

A major upgrading program was underway at Fort George and Buckingham House Historic Site, with new bastions and palisades hoisted into place some 211 years after the original forts were built. There was "no panic and no pandemonium" in an excellent disaster exercise that showed the towns of Elk Point and St. Paul and the County of St. Paul were well prepared to cope with a county-wide emergency.

2008

An animated, entertaining and informative all-candidates forum in St. Paul attracted about 100 people to hear from Westlock-St. Paul federal candidates, Liberal Leila Houle, incumbent Progressive Conservative Brian Storseth, Green Party Aden Murray, New Democrat Della Drury and Christian Heritage Party Sip Hofstede. Elk Point Elementary School students were handed the keys to success when entertainer and educator Steve Harmer came to town with his Motivational Magic.

GUEST COLUMN

Dreams and results

Whenever we see the word "dreams" some of us may think of the song: "Sweet Dreams are Made of This", as performed by the British new wave music duo Eurythmics (Annie Lennox and David A. Stewart) in 1983. Or, some of us may remember the words spoken by Martin Luther King's "I have a dream" speech, August 28, 1963. Today marks a thirty or fifty year ago reference to what dreams met at that time to those people.

Speaking of "Dreams", this last summer while visiting our daughter in Edmonton, she took us to Heritage Amphitheatre in Hawrelak Park to watch a play at the Freewill Shakespeare Festival. The play we were able to watch was "A Midsummer Night's Dream". Let me quote the synopsis as outlined in the program. "In Athens, Hermia loves Lysander, and refuses to marry Demetrius. Duke Theseus states she must marry the man her father chooses, or be sentenced either to death, or to a nunnery. Hermia and Lysander decide to elope, and tell their friend Helena. In love with Demetrius, Helena tells him about their plan, they pursue Hermia and Lysander into the forest. In the forest, Faerie King Oberon is angered when Titania refuses to give her little 'Changeling' to him. Oberon orders Robin Goodfellow to find a magic flower called 'love-in-idleness'. When applied to the eyelids, the intended victim falls in love with the first living thing they see. Oberon applies it to Titania, and orders Robin to use it on Demetrius so he'll fall in love with Helena. Robin errs, causing both Demetrius and Lysander to fall in love with Helena, and turn against Hermia. When amateur actors arrive to rehearse 'Pyramus and Thisbe', Robin transforms Nick Bottom into an ass, and Titania falls in love with him. Oberon pities her, and releases Titania from her spell. Robin reverses the spell on Bottom, unites Lysander with Hermia, and Demetrius with Helena. At dawn, the faeries disappear, and the lovers head back to Athens. Bottom joins his cast at the palace, and they perform their play for Theseus, his new bride Hippolyta, and the contended lovers."

Now you may ask, "What has all of these examples have to do with dreams?" Well, dreams are just that! They are visions or thoughts of something that is hoped for by someone. This coming Monday is Election Day. In the Town of Elk Point we know that our Mayor, Mayor Parrish Tung came in by acclamation. Congratulations Parrish. Then as learned, there are four vacancies for the councillor positions. We also learned that ten people are running for these four positions. Thank you everyone for putting your "hat into the ring" to run for these positions. You are taking up a challenge and are willing to demonstrate your willingness to become a part of Elk Point Town Council. The reason you all put your "hat into the ring" is probably because you had a vision, a thought or a dream of the difference you would make on deanna

from the FCSS desk

Town Council if you were elected. It is interesting where the saying came from about throwing your hat into the ring. The ring in question here is a boxing ring. These of course used to be circular spaces in a crowd of onlookers, rather than the square, roped rings of contemporary pugilism. Any Jack the lad who fancied his chances in a bout would throw in his hat – presumably this was a more reliable way of putting oneself forward than just shouting over the hubbub of the crowd.

Politics may start out as a dream, and then throwing one's hat in the ring, but; as strategized in Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, it may turn out different than the original vision, thought or dream. In other words, in politics, it requires more than just expressing opinions; it also requires listening, accepting the visions, thoughts and dreams of others and then looking at how to make the best happen for everyone. In other words, your original vision, thought or dream may have to be altered or adjusted. Thus we need to ask, "Is the candidate willing to make adjustments when required?" Yes, politics can be complicated. It is not simple. So really, we have a lot to think about as we go to the polls in Elk Point to vote on Monday, Oct 21st between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Likewise this also applies to County residents. They also have a lot to think about. But please refer to the St. Paul Journal for those details. So, if you're a Town or County resident, please vote and as they say: "May the best person win."

County Library Board visits Elk Point Library

Councillor and reeve candidates speak to the issues at County forum

By JANICE HUSER
Review Contributor

The County of St. Paul all-candidates forum took place on Oct. 9 and offered ratepayers a chance to question candidates up for the position of reeve, and the two divisions being contested in the Oct. 21 election.

Three names have been put forward for the position of reeve, including incumbent Steve Upham, and former PC MLA Ray Danyluk. Also on the ballot is local contractor Ben Dyck.

In Division 4, incumbent Maxine Fodness and Lottie Lake resident Dave Neary have put their names forward, while in Division 5 incumbent Frank Sloan and Owleseye resident Donna

Hanson will see their names on the ballot.

The night started with opening statements by each of the candidates.

"I want to see a council that is efficient," said Neary, as he introduced himself to a Rec. Centre filled with county ratepayers. "If we expect to obtain a different result, we need change," he added.

Sloan offered his introduction, and the skills that he believes make him capable of doing a good job as councillor, such as teamwork, experience, and leadership.

Fodness briefly went over the responsibilities of municipal governments as she introduced herself.

"Everything we do is determined by the budget," said Fodness, adding, councillors must spend taxpayers' dollars wisely.

Hanson told residents that she wants to see a council that is accountable and honest.

The candidates up for reeve then took to the podium.

Danyluk, who is a former PC MLA for the area and has also served as the reeve of the County of St. Paul in the past, clarified at the beginning of his introduction that he will not be letting his name stand as MLA in future provincial elections and is refocusing his efforts.

Dyck said that he believes the county has to "get back to the basics" of road maintenance and get its debt under control.

Upham said that when he was elected in 2010, electors wanted transparency, and he believes the public trust in the county has greatly improved.

The first question to be read to candidates was directed to those up for reeve, and requested clarification on what the responsibilities of a reeve at large are.

Upham was first to speak, explaining that he chairs all meetings, worked closely with the CAO, and drives across the county when required to do so. The reeve is the spokesperson for the county and added that in the past two years his salary has not been more than the previous reeve.

Dyck also took time to respond to the question, and said he supports the reeve at large system because it gives everyone a say in who the elected reeve will be.

Danyluk said that although he served as a reeve elected by council in the past, he believes it's "absolutely important that the reeve is elected at large." Having council elect the reeve from amongst themselves can create some political situations that are avoided with the reeve at large system.

The paving of subdivisions in the county was also brought up throughout the forum. Sloan said the paving was done because the quote received by the contractor was "fairly good."

When asked where the money would come from to fix cracks appearing in the new pavement, Sloan explained that the pavement is under warranty and the issue will be looked at.

Dyck responded to the issue also and stated that as a contractor, his knowledge would be helpful on council for these types of situations.

Danyluk said he felt that when it came to road projects, it was important to "take a longer time and do the job right."

County looks to bring water from St. Paul to Ashmont

By JANICE HUSER
Review Contributor

After reevaluating its options, the County of St. Paul has decided to submit a scope change application to the province for the Ashmont/Lottie Lake water project, looking now for a regional water transmission line that would go from the Town of St. Paul to Ashmont.

Council met on Oct. 4 with Urban Systems, the engineer with the project, to review the options for getting better quality water to Ashmont and Lottie Lake. Plans to upgrade the Ashmont Water Treatment Plant were put on hold when the province announced its 2013-14 budget and a reduction to the Water for Life funding program.

Options examined included a connection to the water line at Spedden, which is from the Hwy 28/63 Water Commission; connecting to the Town of St. Paul network, provided that the upgrade to the St. Paul Treatment Plant is approved; or building a Regional Water Treatment Plant in Ashmont.

"Council's main priority was to choose the option that would provide the lowest costs of water to the residents of Ashmont and Lottie Lake," says the October County of St. Paul agenda. "Council determined that the option to pursue a connect from the Town of St. Paul's potable water network to Ashmont was in the best interest of the county."

A motion to submit the scope change was carried.

Family Clinic

Reeve Steve Upham spoke to councillor about his participation in the Community Working Group Committee, which was a group of people who put together an application for services for the recently announced Family Care Clinic in St. Paul.

Upham explained that he got a call from organizers of the committee because they wanted municipal input. He attended four meetings with the group and explained that now another committee will be struck.

Upham said he felt he brought forward the county's concerns about local health care, but did not offer a letter of support, since that could commit the County of St. Paul financially.

Coun. Cliff Martin said he was concerned that other councillors didn't have the opportunity to offer their input with the application.

After the discussion, council ratified Upham's attendance at the meetings.

Fern Chapel

Council has agreed to help The Ferguson Flats Association designate Fern Chapel as a historical site, under the Municipal Heritage Partnership Program.

The request came to council as, "the membership is getting older and the group wants to know that the building will be protected for future generations," according to the county's October agenda.

County administration has been in contact with Municipal Heritage Services and the first step in the process is to develop a Statement of Significance explaining why the building is being protected, and what needs to be preserved for the chapel to retain its significance.

A Statement of Significance has been quoted at $2,230. The Ferguson Flats Association does not have the funds to pay for the SOS and is requesting the county pay for it.

In a letter to county councillors from the Ferguson Flats Association, it is noted that Fern Chapel "is one of Alberta's few remaining first generation schoolhouses. It was in use as a school from 1914 to 1949... it was also a community centre."

In 2001 a restoration project was initiated to return Fern Chapel to its original condition, says the letter, adding, the work was complete in 2003.

Coun. Dwight Dach made a motion to approve the request. It was carried.

Thank You

Prior to the regular council meeting, FCSS Director Janice Fodchuk offered her thanks to County of St. Paul Coun. Alphonse Corbiere who is retiring and not running for re-election.

Fodchuk served council pie and ice cream and said she appreciated working with Corbiere.

"I'm going to miss you," said Fodchuk. Other councillors and staff in attendance also offered thanks to Corbiere.

Welcome Back

Also prior to the meeting officially starting, CAO Sheila Kitz welcomed back Public Works Superintendent Leo deMoissac, who had been off work for about three months. He said he plans to be back at work officially starting Nov. 1.

Road Closure

A road closure in Division 4 was brought back to the discussion table last week as council weighed the options of passing first reading of a bylaw that could potentially see the closure of a road allowance that runs through a creek, to allow for a house to be built on the piece of property.

Kitz noted that she was concerned about the request because the parcel that would be created would span over two quarter sections. She added that the county has the ability to reduce setbacks, which would allow for the landowners to have seven acres to build on. The landowners would like 10 acres so they could have a pump out sewer system, rather than a field system.

"The road allowance is like an asset to the county," said Dennis Bergheim, the county's planning manager, when speaking with council on the issue.

Fodness spoke in favour of the road allowance cancellation, saying there is a good existing road near the allowance, which had been built with the cooperation of the landowner and the county.

The reason the road wasn't built on the allowance was because a creek runs through it.

"I think it's workable... I think it's a very unique situation," said Fodness. She later made a motion for first reading of Bylaw 2013-39, which was carried. The bylaw will be advertised and a public hearing held.

"I think it needs to go out in the community," said Fodness.

COUNTY OF
ST. PAUL No. 19

HIGHLIGHTS

October 8, 2013 Council Meeting

ELECTION DAY – MONDAY, OCTOBER 21, 2013 – Polls are open from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Remember, even if your divisional Councillor has been acclaimed, electors should come out to vote for Reeve-at-Large. List of polling stations is available on the County website at www.county.stpaul.ab.ca.

Planning and Development – Council gave first reading to Bylaw No. 2013-38 to license the undeveloped road allowance between SE 28-57-6-W4 and NE 21-57-6-W4 for agricultural purposes. Council also gave first reading to Bylaw No. 2013-39 to cancel a portion of the road allowance located between SE 21 and SE 22-58-11-W4 so it can be consolidated with the adjacent parcel of land which is naturally fragmented by Range Road 113. In addition, Council gave first reading to Bylaw 2013-40 which rescinds Bylaw 2013-01. This will revert a parcel of land that was zoned Industrial/Commercial back to Agriculture as the landowner wishes to revise his plans for his development. The Bylaw affects PSE 25-57-7-W4.

Year Round Fire Permits – Council agreed to amend the Fire Bylaw to require Year Round Burning Permits after receiving a letter requesting this, which was signed by all Fire Chiefs in the County. Trevor Kotowich, St. Paul Fire Chief attended the Council meeting and informed Council that during the period when fire permits are not required, the volunteer fire departments are called to many false alarms. Helpful motorist would call in to report a fire, when in fact it was a landowner who was burning a brush pile. By implementing year round burning, landowners will be required to obtain a fire permit for any of this type of burning regardless of the time of year. These permits are provided to the appropriate fire department as well as the 911 Dispatch. Permit holders are to call the Dispatch Centre prior to lighting their fire. This way when a call comes in reporting a fire, the Dispatch Centre can consult their information to see if a permit was issued in that area and contact the permit holder prior to dispatching fire units for a potentially false alarm. Implementing year round permits will reduce the stress of our volunteers, the costs to the County, and the liability of having volunteers travelling in emergency vehicles unnecessarily.

Council stressed that they want to ensure that Administration educates residents regarding the requirement for year round burning permits as well as review the process to obtain a permit making it as easy as possible for landowners to obtain one.

Fern Chapel – The County, at the request of the Ferguson Flats Association, entered into an agreement with Community Design Strategies Inc. (CDS Inc.) to prepare a Statement of Significance for Fern Chapel so that it can be declared a historical site under the Municipal Heritage Partnership Program and preserved for future generations. The Statement of Significance explains what is being protected, why it is valued and it lists the physical, character defining elements that must be preserved for it to retain significance. CDS Inc. will work with members of the Ferguson Flats Association to collect the information.

Paving of Internal Roads in Subdivisions – Now that most subdivisions in the County are paved, Administration felt it necessary to address paving of internal roads in any new subdivisions in order to maintain some level of consistency moving forward. Now, when developers sign a development agreement with the County, the agreement will state that "All multi-lot residential subdivision developments (which means more than four (4) lots within a quarter section - as defined in the Municipal Development Plan Bylaw No. 2013-10) that are serviced by an internal road will require pavement (hot mix). The Planning and Development Department will address this with all new developers. In addition, this is being updated in the County's new Engineering Servicing Standards.

Water for Ashmont / Lottie Lake – Council met with consultants Urban Systems for a workshop on October 4, 2013. During this workshop, Urban Systems reviewed their analysis of three options for water servicing to Ashmont and Lottie Lake and in the future Mallaig. Their analysis was a multiple account evaluation of three different options that looked at capital costs and financial considerations, environmental considerations, governance, grant availability, risk considerations, contractibility, and future expansions. The options examined included a connection to the water line at Spedden which is a connection from the Highway 28/63 Commission; connection to the potable water network at the Town of St. Paul (provided their Water Treatment Plant is approved for an upgrade); or the building of a Regional Water Treatment Plant in Ashmont. Council's main concern was to provide the lowest costs of water to the residents of Ashmont and Lottie Lake. Based on the analysis provided, Council determined that the option to pursue a connection from the Town of St. Paul's potable water network to Ashmont was in the best interest of the County. Therefore Council made a motion to submit a scope change application to Alberta Transportation for the Ashmont/Lottie Lake Water for Life Project from the current scope with the water source being an upgraded Water Treatment Plant in Ashmont to a Regional Water Transmission Line/System from the Town of St. Paul to Ashmont.

Ashmont Sewer Line Expansion – Council resolved to approve an expansion of the Ashmont Sewer line to three properties in Ashmont provided that Administration receives the necessary documentation from the adjacent landowners. Administration will see if they can have this project completed in 2013.

Strategic Plan – Administration provided the third quarter update on the Strategic Business Plan which can be viewed on the County website.

Coyote / Wolf Reduction Incentive Program – will run from November 1, 2013 to April 30, 2014, or until the budget has been expended. $15 will be paid per coyote and $75 per wolf. The number of Coyotes/wolves eligible for the incentive payment is limited to 20 coyotes/wolves per week with a total of 100 per season per resident/landowner. To qualify for the incentive program, arrangements must be made with the Ag Service Board Staff (780-645-3006) who will arrange to meet you at the County shop to accept the carcasses. More information is available on the County website.

Stop order issued on work camps

By JANICE HUSER
Review Contributor

County of St. Paul CAO Sheila Kitz reported to St. Paul county council at last week's regular meeting on Oct. 8 that some stop orders have gone out to work camps that are not complying with the Land Use Bylaw.

Work camps with a minimum of three and a maximum of 50 recreational vehicles require a development permit with the County of St. Paul. Permits are valid for one year and work camps with recreational vehicles can only operate from April 1 to Dec. 1.

"When a person wishes to apply for a permit to have a work camp, they must meet the criteria," says Kitz, via email with the Journal. The Planning and Development Department at the county will issue the permits with conditions.

Conditions could include a road deposit in case of road damage, says Kitz, adding, it could also include confirmation that wastewater is being dealt with properly.

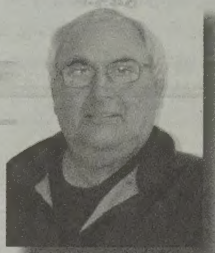

"If the specified conditions are not met, then the Planning Department will send a stop order as the person has not complied," says Kitz.

Work camps can only be put in agricultural and industrial/commercial districts.

For Elk Point Town Council

Pidluzny advocated the use of social media and encouraging residents to sit in on a council meeting, while Fraess countered that the meetings on planning "didn't bring out the people, sad to say." Capjack, however, agreed that if residents came to council meetings, "council would entertain their questions." McQuinn said she would be approachable both in person and electronically and "if you send me questions I would respond in a timely manner."

"How would you see balancing growth with maintaining existing infrastructure?" was the next question from those in attendance.

"Both are key," Young answered, noting that roads and sidewalks are not always in good condition. "We have to grow, it all comes down to the good use of money, working within the structure we have and making good decisions. Sometimes there are hard choices."

"What projects do you see yourself spearheading?" they were asked.

McQuinn would "push development, because we need the tax dollars, and keep expanding," while Young would "create conditions where growth occurs and make sure people come into the community." Fraess pointed out the work ongoing in the new residential and industrial areas and said, "I don't think we have been behind at all. I don't know how businesses would come into the community unless they have a reason to be here."

The Social 30 students also wondered how the town will deal with parking and traffic flow in the wake of increased development.

"This has been an issue even in previous years, we just have to do our best," Yaremkevich said, Capjack adding that an adequate traffic count is necessary to obtain traffic lights, which are very costly.

"It all comes down to money," Fraess agreed. "Wider streets cost more."

"Wait and see when winter sets in, with the garbage bins on the roads," Godlien predicted, while Kratchmer suggested designated parking areas be set aside for oilfield trucks.

The issue of an in-town work camp came to the table, with candidates taking both sides.

Godlien felt it was "questionable. Out of town would be easier to control."

McQuinn "wouldn't support a camp, I would support a lodging facility. It's not like hundreds of people, it's policed; these people leave on their days off. They're not 'those kinds of people,' our men and women live in these camps up north."

Buck said one of his work duties that day was to make arrangements for some of his firm's employees to stay in a camp. "I am those kind of people. Our municipal plan has adequate space for an industrial lodge in the industrial area. People in the west part of town were quite adamant that they didn't want it there. I am for it in the correct location."

Young agreed with Buck as to the location, and added that he did not know if a camp "fits the description" for current tax incentives.

Fraess noted that following the meeting with the proposed lodge developers, the town changed the zoning, but "never heard another word from them. Until (a development permit) comes to the council table, we don't know what it is, and won't be against it until we know."

"There is a place in the industrial subdivision," Capjack agreed, "but in the residential area, the residents are against it. We have to listen to their concerns."

Capjack also spoke to a question regarding seniors' housing, and said, "my dream is the development of one level houses for seniors," in the future.

The hospital crisis was also brought to the fore, and all candidates agreed that it is an ongoing issue. "The hospital file should always stay open," Buck said, with McQuinn adding that the Health Care Centre is "the backbone of the community" and can never be far from council's minds, because "health care cuts happen all the time."

The completion date water line from St. Paul was also questioned, with Fraess suggesting, "Pick a date. We could have a lottery. It's waiting on agreements and we're not going to sign anything until we know we won't get stuck with extra costs." However, he assured residents, the town still has its pumping system and water treatment plant in operation and will continue to deliver water to them.

Consistent enforcement of town bylaws was also questioned, with candidates agreeing that bylaws need to be enforced by the bylaw officer or the RCMP, depending on the type of bylaw.

Candidates were asked to state the number one strength of our community, with Pidluzny answering, "perseverance and sticking together," McQuinn noting, "home is what you make it," Buck stating, "location, location, location," and Fraess, Godlien, Young, Capjack and Yaremkevich all agreeing, "the people."

Candidates then had their opportunity to present a "late night infomercial" telling the voters why they would be a good choice at the polls, and made good use of the opportunity to state their "vote for me" platforms.

Wastewater

Following a wastewater backup in Mallaig, a homeowner is requesting the County of St. Paul pay the insurance deductible to make repairs to the home.

The lift station in Mallaig went down due to a power interruption in July and caused the backup into a home. According to the residents affected, they have had wastewater back-up into their home at least four times in the past eight years.

To reduce the likelihood of this happening again, the county will install a new alarm system that will involve a call-out to utility operators' cell phones if the lift station malfunctions, heard council.

A backflow preventing valve will also be installed at the residence.

A motion to refer the issue to the county's insurance company and install the backflow preventing valve was carried.

Neary noted that although the paving in the subdivisions is nice to have, the county didn't really have to do it.

Fodness responded by saying the county was spending $300,000 a year on repairing the same problems in subdivisions, and paving the subdivisions will help free up the county's workers so they can get other projects done.

"It's very simple business," said Upham, adding, he believes in 15 years this will be seen as a very smart decision.

The Wellness Centre was also brought up, and a written question asking why the county only gave $1 million to the project was read.

Upham responded by explaining that it was the previous county council that agreed to the $1 million contribution, and after requesting and being denied a managing partner in the clinic, council decided to stand by the commitment and let the town manage the centre, with no further funding being given.

Upham said he felt the process involved in the construction of the centre "lacked transparency."

After the candidates up for reeve spoke briefly on the issue, Sloan also made a point to clarify that he did not vote on the issue of the Wellness Centre, since his daughter is a medical physician who might return to the community.

Fodness also spoke and noted that different levels of government have different responsibilities and "medical care belongs with the province."

A question was also asked regarding whether or not the county would consider hiring a peace officer to enforce bylaws.

Neary spoke first, stating he personally supports the idea of having a peace officer working for the county.

Sloan explained that the issue is something that has been discussed in the past and pegged the idea at costing about $200,000 per year for each peace officer hired. For a county the size of St. Paul, about four officers would be needed.

"I just feel at this time we can't afford it," said Sloan.

Hanson recommended that the county should revisit the idea and Fodness also spoke in favour of the idea.

Danyluk cautioned on the cost of having peace officers, saying, "you better be prepared to budget $1 million."

Dyck said he would prefer to see small communities and subdivisions have community associations instead. And Upham said that as the county's population increases, it will be inevitable that a peace officer will be needed.

The issue of water in Lottie Lake and Ashmont also arose. Fondness explained to those in attendance of the recent decision for council to request a scope change on the project, which could bring water from St. Paul out to the Ashmont/Lottie Lake areas.

"In this short time, we have water across the county," said Sloan, regarding work being done with water lines in the county.

Following the question and answer period, candidates offered some closing comments and the event wrapped up.

Heinsburg

Last year, he noted, the school's junior girls volleyball team had their first win in the final week of competition, but "this year, they had their first win in the first week of the season. They did very well to represent our school."

Runzer feels sports competition "really unites the school community," and says the school now has "an amazing coach with high expectations, and the team is responding very well." There is also potential for further sports involvement, he says. "The high school boys and girls are anxious for basketball season to start."

During September, students and staff attended the Division Pow Wow in Saddle Lake, enjoying a day filled with dancing, laughter and feasting, and a week later, raised over $1,500 for the Terry Fox Foundation with their annual Terry Fox Run. Junior and senior high students also took part in a workshop at their school and a walk at Frog Lake marking World Suicide Prevention Day.

Later this month, 51 students from grades five to nine are headed to southern Alberta on "a cultural adventure," Runzer says, and will be visiting the Glenbow Museum in Calgary and Head Smashed In Buffalo Jump historic site.

Enrolments, grades, awards discussed by SPERD board

By SAM MACDONALD
Review Contributor

Before last week's meeting of the St. Paul Education Regional Division No. 1 board, retiring SPERD board chair Maureen Miller, and trustees, Darrell Younghans, and Ron Rudkowsky presented the members of the central office of SPERD with a present – a large barometer, as a thank you to them for all their hard work.

Miller, Younghans, and Rudkowsky were each presented with plaques to commemorate their service, and accomplishments as chair and trustees of the board.

Enrollment

Superintendent Glen Brodziak reported in an update, that this year, enrollment in division schools has gone up by 47 students from projections made last spring.

Brodziak noted that a jump in enrollment occurred between the count on Sept. 30, and the point at which he reported to the board on Oct. 9, from 38 to 47. Additionally, Brodziak reported that 2.5 teachers were hired, with two full-time positions and one half time position filled.

Gym Naming

Brodziak reported receiving a letter from FG Miller School Principal, Darcy Younghans, explaining that the school parent council passed a motion to name their own gymnasium after former MLA Ray Danyluk, to acknowledge his political and volunteer contributions, having helped arrange to build the gym, and having coached so many students in school athletics at FG Miller. A motion to accept the naming of the gym was passed by the board.

Public Interest Disclosure Act

The board reviewed a draft of the Public Interest Disclosure Act. The act is meant to protect whistle-blowers reporting unethical practices within the school division, in an effort to "deter and detect wrongdoing within the operations of the school division," reads the draft.

The board approved the act as a policy rather than an administrative procedure, appointing Vice Chairperson, Heather Starosielski as the designated officer to whom whistle-blowing reports will be addressed.

Standard Grades

Assistant Superintendent Patricia Gervais delivered a presentation about the aggregate standard grades from students tested in Grade 3, 6, and 9. The presentation, featuring graphs comparing students' performances to others in the division and province showed that there has been some slight improvement all around, though students in the division are still, general speaking, behind other divisions in the province.

"We're comparing ourselves to how others in the province are doing. We're catching up. Our goal is get better, but its one step at a time," said Brodziak in regard to the performance test results.

He added, "Since 2004, we've been in the right direction for (improvement)."

Library changes tea day

By LIBRARY STAFF

After a disappointingly small turnout for last Tuesday's Library Tea, the event's volunteer organizers agreed to move the monthly event to the second Tuesday of the month, so it does not conflict with other events. The November tea is slated for Nov. 12.

The date has also been set for another upcoming annual event. The library will once again host the Alzheimer Coffee Break, on Tuesday, Oct. 29. Watch next week for more information.

This week we will be welcoming the C.O.W. Bus, with its wealth of early literacy fun for preschoolers. The bus will be here on Friday, Oct. 18, so make sure to stop by with your little ones and join in the activities. Call the library at 780-724-3737 for more information.

Elk Point librarian Daohne Schnurer points out changes to the library to County of St. Paul Library Board members who visited last Monday.

MP announces call for proposals to tackle seniors' social isolation

AMEE PUNDICK
Communications Officer

Member of Parliament Brian Storseth, on behalf of the Honourable Alice Wong, Minister of State (Seniors), has highlighted a Call for Proposals to fund approximately 20 community-based pilot projects—an investment of $2,000,000—aimed at addressing seniors' social isolation.

"Our government values the skills, knowledge and experience that seniors contribute to society," said MP Brian Storseth. "Through these local projects we're combating the social isolation of seniors and helping them to remain active in the community."

These pilot projects will be eligible to receive between $50,000 and $100,000 of federal funding over a maximum of 24 months which will be matched with funding from other sources. The New Horizons for Seniors Program (NHSP) pilot projects will also pursue intergenerational learning projects that help seniors develop new interests and share their knowledge and experience with others.

The application period began on Oct. 3 and will close on Nov. 13. Additional information and application details are available at www.hrsdc.gc.ca/eng/seniors <<http://www.hrsdc.gc.ca/eng/seniors>>.

Through Economic Action Plan 2013, the Government proposes to better safeguard the well-being of seniors in a variety of areas, including financial services, financial literacy and health.

For a wide range of information for seniors, including details on the NHSP, please visit www.seniors.gc.ca <<http://www.seniors.gc.ca>>.

Cereals Canada established to grow Canada's grain industry

ALBERTA WHEAT COMMISSION

More than a year after the Canadian Wheat Board's monopoly on grain marketing ended in Canada, there are still significant changes taking place across the country's agriculture landscape. The latest advancement is the establishment of Cereals Canada — a multi-stakeholder, multi-commodity organization that will work to enhance the domestic and international competitiveness of Canadian cereals.

Efforts to create this cross-functional, collaborative organization first began when the Cereals Council of Canada

Working Group, a broad committee of industry stakeholders came together in 2012 to address the growing national and international interest in cereals. Modeled after other highly successful national organizations, Cereals Canada has been established to become the voice of and driving force behind Canada's cereals industry.

Taking this approach makes sense," offers Jean-Marc Ruest, Senior Vice-President, Corporate Affairs and General Counsel for Richardson International and one of Cereals Canada's founding Directors.

Cereals Canada

"Structuring the organization in this way allows us to deal with issues and priorities that are more reflective of the way we carry out our respective businesses, and will allow us to work towards the most successful outcomes for the whole industry."

Cereals Canada will focus on and apply a coordinated effort to directly supporting research, agronomy, market development, market access and policy efforts that will ensure the profitability and long-term sustainability of all elements of the value chain associated with Canada's cereal grains industry.

"Our overarching objective is to ensure Canada's entire cereal grains industry remains competitive, profitable and innovative," says Kent Erickson, Cereals Canada founding Director, and Chair of the Alberta Wheat Commission. "And because Cereals Canada represents the entire industry value chain, we can effectively be that voice for industry to be able to achieve those objectives."

Cereals Canada members, which represent a broad cross-section of industry players that includes producers and producer groups, processors, exporters and handlers and life sciences and seed companies, will all directly and equally contribute to the organization and its efforts.

"The entire value chain has ownership and a voice in this organization," adds Jay Bradshaw, Syngenta Canada President and Cereals Canada founding Director. "Going forward, it's this holistic, cross-functional structure that will allow us to effectively encourage investment in Canada, as well as maintain and grow Canada's global customer opportunities for cereals and cereal products produced in Canada."

Building on that energy and momentum, Cereals Canada has recently engaged Scott Wolfe Management Inc. to immediately begin the search for a President who will oversee and direct the organization's efforts.

SPERD Board Chair Maureen Miller (centre), and trustees Ron Rudkowsky (left), and Darrell Younghans (right) have decided not to let their names stand in the upcoming school board elections. As a token of the gratitude of the division, they were presented with plaques to commemorate their service as chair and trustees.

School board

"Only time will tell how far we go, but the important thing is to stay on top and see the results. Are we where we want to be yet? No, but it's still always about getting better, and the trend lines show that we are. We've made gains, and the credit goes to teachers, and administrators. We're hoping decisions aren't working against us. We'd have to assume we've made good decisions over last 5-7 years."

Superintendent's Report

Superintendent Brodziak explained that this year, the division will not be sending principals to the job fairs at the University of Alberta. Brodziak explained that the measure was to accommodate this year's smaller budget, and the fact that the division already has a high rate of interest from prospective teachers, and a strong and popular First Year Teacher Program.

"It'll be year-by-year basis -- we'll see where we're at. We're satisfied, already, and getting excellent people coming out here," said Brodziak.

ASBA Zone 2 / 3 Report

For his final Report, Rudkowsky relayed what had been done at the Alberta School Boards Association (ASBA), Zone 2 / 3 meeting. Matters like the cost of modular classrooms, their delivery, installation and furniture, and who should cover those costs, professional development including the whistle-blower legislation, curriculum redesign, and funding framework changes, and budget balancing strategies were discussed.

Board Chair Maureen Miller (centre), and trustees Ron Rudkowsky (left), and Darrell Younghans (right) have decided not to let their names stand in the upcoming school board elections. To show their gratefulness for the hard work of those who worked with them in the division, they presented a gift of a barometer to Lucy Bashko, Executive Assistant to the Superintendent, on Oct. 9.

Due to press time restrictions, results of the Oct. 21 municipal elections will be posted on the St. Paul Journal website spjournal.com as soon as they are available.

CELEBRATING A CENTURY OF FINDING YOUR VOICE

KRISTA & JANELLE GRIEVE
4th Generation 4-H Members
Manitoba

1913 2013

ENBRIDGE
NATIONAL SPONSOR

Enbridge is proud to celebrate 100 years of 4-H in Canada.

For over a century 4-H has been helping to bring out the best in Canadian youth. Janelle and Krista come from a long line of 4-H members, including their great-grandmother who was part of the very first 4-H club in Canada. Four generations later Janelle learned the art of public speaking in 4-H, which has helped in her pursuit of a post-secondary education. As for her younger sister Krista, she's following in her sister's footsteps with a passion for communication and leadership activities. Through 4-H, Janelle and Krista are continuing a family legacy and finding their voice in the community.

At Enbridge, we understand that when we invest in organizations like 4-H, we're helping young Canadians realize their dreams and become the community leaders of tomorrow.
